DATA SCIENCE ASSIGNMENT

Day - 33:

1. Which Python web framework is commonly used for building web applications and APIs and is known for its simplicity and flexibility?

2. Which of the following frameworks is specifically designed for creating interactive and data-driven web applications with minimal code and is often used for data science projects?

3. FastAPI is known for its high performance and automatic generation of OpenAPI documentation. Which feature sets FastAPI apart from the other frameworks in terms of API development?

4. How would you handle a POST request in Flask to process form data?

5. . How do you create a basic Flask application?